FortisTCI and Cadwell Inc. Partner Together to Remove Waste from the Turks and Caicos Islands and Sustainably Recycle It

The partnership is just one step that the Turks and Caicos Islands are taking to reverse the damage done to the environment and enhance the local community.

Pompano Beach, FL, USA (July 22, 2020) – The protection of the Turks and Caicos Islands is critical to ensure the economic and environmental sustainability of the island.

As part of the partnership, Cadwell Inc. will be removing items from the landfill and transporting them off-island to recycle.

Hiring local people from the Turks and Caicos to remove the waste and fill the containers, will also help stimulate the local economy. This is paramount today, as many islands are on the verge of bankruptcies due to the COVID-19 pandemic stripping them from their primary sources of income - tourism.

The profits from the recycled and repurposed materials will go back to the government and utility companies as well. A percentage of the profits also go towards the Light of Hope foundation, which installs LED lights into the local schools, orphanages, and churches. This initiative allows for the transformation of the lives of the local community by offering children essential utilities to further support human well-being and development and promote education.

To date, Cadwell Inc. has been the first company that has removed and recycled more than 3.4 million pounds of waste from the Caribbean islands. By working together with FortisTCI, the partnership supports the Turks and Caicos long-term environmental and sustainability efforts.

“Using modern technology to sustainably recycle and repurpose the materials that get removed from the landfills, you are able to use less energy and trap negative chemicals so that nothing but clean energy is released back into the environment. This reduces smoke and thereby increases the value and quality of the recyclables” said Andrew Cadwell (CEO Cadwell Inc.).

ABOUT CADWELL INC.

Cadwell Inc. is a leading recycling distribution company offering quality products and servicing governments and utility companies across the Caribbean and Central America to reduce landfill waste by removing it off the islands and sustainably recycling it.
